CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY
ELECTION, 1882.

SIR,—We venture to request your support to the candidature of PROFESSOR STUART, Fellow of Trinity College, for the seat in PARLIAMENT about to be vacated by the Right Hon. S. H. WATKINS.

Professor Stuart has not only taken an active part in the teaching and administration of the University for many years, but has also rendered conspicuous service to education by extending the sphere of academic teaching beyond the limits of the University. To him is due the initiation and direction of a system which has carried University teaching into the great towns of England.

As Professor of Mechanism and Applied Mechanics, and as founder of a school of practical engineering in the University, he has shown exceptional power in dealing with those problems of technical education which are now rising into special importance.

He has devoted much study to the condition of the working classes and to the social questions connected with their welfare.

Professor Stuart possesses a thorough knowledge of affairs, and is a practised and effective speaker. He has announced that, if elected, he intends to resign his Professorship in order to devote himself entirely to the business of Parliament.

We confidently appeal for support to those who think that a representative of the University in Parliament should faithfully reflect its life and work.

We have the honour to be, yours very faithfully,

S. G. FENNER, Chairman of the Cambridge Committee.
HARTINGTON, Chairman of the London Committee.
DONALD MCALISTER, Secretary.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF ENGLAND.

A TRUE STORY of the WESTERN

PACIFIC in 1879-1880. By HUGH HASTINGS
ROMILLY. Crown 8vo, with Frontispiece, 2s. 6d.

"Under the title of 'A True
Story of the Western Pacific' Mr.
Romilly gives a singularly graphic and interesting account of his experiences in Rotumah, whither he went in company with Mr. Arthur Gordon, who was sent there officially, or semi-officially, by Sir
Arthur Gordon, in answer to a petition presented at Fiji by the three most powerful chiefs of Rotu-mah. The book consists of only eighty-two small pages, but every one of them is interesting. The ghost experience at the end, which the author will not accept as supernatural, and cannot explain as natural, is one of the best stories of the kind we have seen."

THE MERV OASIS:

Travels and Adventures East of the Caspian during the Years 1879-80-81, including Five Months' Residence among the Tekkes of Merv.

By EDMOND O'DONOVAN,
Special Correspondent of the "Daily News."

"These volumes contain an extremely graphic description of one of the most remarkable features in geographical enterprise of our time. . . . It is highly improbable that any future writer will succeed in giving us anything approaching the realistic picture which Mr. O'Donovan has drawn of the Teké capital and its inhabitants."—Standard, November 11, 1882.
"His complete narrative of his bold and successful enterprise possesses for us all the interest of a thrilling romance. His style is extremely vivid and picturesque, his anecdotes are many and varied, and his portraits of Turcomans and Persians are graphic and lifelike to the last degree. . . . Such is the naked skeleton of this remarkable and truly Oriental tale, but whoever wishes to see it covered in lifelike and vigorous colours must turn to Mr. O'Donovan's own delightful pages."—Field, November 11, 1882.

Now ready, fcap. 8vo, with Illustrations, price 2s.

FIRST AID to the INJURED: Five Ambulance Lectures. By Dr. FRIEDRICH ESMARCH. Translated from the German by Her Royal Highness PRINCESS CHRISTIAN.

NOTICE.—The SIXTEENTH EDITION is now ready of VICE-VERSA; or, a Lesson to Fathers.

By F. ANSTEY. Crown 8vo, 6s.
"If there ever was a book made up from beginning to end of laughter, yet not a comic book, or a 'merry' book, or a book of jokes, or a book of pictures, or a jest book, or a tomfool book, but a perfectly sober and serious book, in the reading of which a sober man may laugh without shame from beginning to end, it is the new book called 'Vice Versa; or, a Lesson to Fathers.' . . . We close the book, recommending it very earnestly to all fathers, in the first instance, and their sons, nephews, uncles, and male cousins next."—Saturday Review.

ON MR. SPENCER'S UNIFICATION OF KNOWLEDGE.

By Malcolm Guthrie.

Author of "On Mr. Spencer's Formula of Evolution."

CONTENTS.

On Mr. Spencer's Unification of Knowledge.
Reply to Mr. Spencer's Criticism.
An Examination of the "Principles of Psychology" with regard to its Position in the system for the Unification of Knowledge.
An Examination of the "Principles of Biology" with regard to its Place in Mr. Spencer's System.
This work is a Criticism of the general Logical Construction of Mr. Spencer's Philosophical system. The Writer is not opposed to the Author he criticises as regards the Scientific Doctrine of Evolution or Natural Development, so far as it is known to us; but he sees great blanks in the deductive treatment and great failures of explanation, which cause him to regard Mr. Spencer's presumed fallacies of exposition as merely illusory.

EMERSON At HOME and ABROAD.

By M. D. Conway.

Author of "The Sacred Anthology," &c.

This book is the work of one who was personally well acquainted with Emerson for nearly thirty years, and with the eminent persons (Lewthorpe, Everett, and others) who in that time surrounded him at Concord, Mass., U.S.A.; it reviews the personal and general history of the so-called "Transcendental" movement in America; and it contains various letters by Emerson not before published, as well as personal recollections of his lectures and conversations. A full biographical sketch is given of Emerson, of his visits to England, his lectures, and of his friendship with Carlyle and others in this country. The work contains studies of Emerson's relation to religious movements and tendencies, and of his ethical, philosophical, and scientific opinions. His influence on the mind and character of America, and of his connection with its social and political progress, are fully reviewed.

WITH the CONNAUGHT

RANGERS, in QUARTERS, CAMP, and on LEAVE. By General E. H. MAXWELL, C.B., Author of "Griffin, Abbot," 1 vol., demy 8vo, with Illustrations, 15s.

THE FRIENDSHIPS of MARY

RUSSELL MITFORD: as Recorded in Letters from her Literary Correspondents. Edited by the Rev. A. G. L'ESTRANGE, Editor of the "Life of Mary Russell Mitford," &c. 2 vols., 21s.
"No one has left a happier memory behind her than Miss Mitford. Her books are fresh with all the freshness of country life. The letters addressed to her are extremely miscellaneous; there are some characteristic ones from Cobbett, some really clever ones from Sir William Ewart, and some full of pleasant gossip from Mrs. Trollope."—Athenaeum.
"These letters are all written as to one whom the writers love and revere. Miss Barrett is one of Miss Mitford's correspondents, all of whom seem to be inspired with a sense of excellence in the mind they are invoking. Their letters are extremely interesting, and they strike out recollections, opinions, criticisms, which will hold the reader's delighted and serious attention."—Daily Telegraph.

COURT LIFE BELOW STAIRS;

or, London Under the First Georges, 1714—1760. By J. FITZGERALD MOLLOY. SECOND EDITION. 2 vols., 21s.

"These volumes recall scenes and anecdotes which will long continue to amuse readers."—St. James's Gazette.
"Mr. Molloy produces some curious anecdotes which have not before appeared in print, and he is always lively."—Pall Mall Gazette.
"These two volumes are very pleasant reading. Mr. Molloy has much to say, and says it in a witty and pleasant manner. The Anecdotes of Pope and Addison, Swift and Steele, Colley Cibber, Gay, Congreve, Susanna Centlivre, Lady Mary Wortley-Montagu, and others are all interesting."—Sunday Times.

THE NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.

EXCHANGE no ROBBERY. By Miss BETHAM-EDWARDS, Author of "Kitty," "Bridget," &c. 2 vols.

I HAVE LIVED and LOVED. By Mrs. FORRESTER, Author of "Viva," "Mignon," &c. SECOND EDITION. 3 vols.

A GOLDEN BAR. By the Author of "CHRISTINA NORTH," "UNDER THE LINES," &c. 3 vols.

"A Golden Bar" is pleasant reading, every page being instinct with refinement; while there is freedom from exaggeration and gentle humour in the drawing of every character. —John Bull.
"In 'A Golden Bar' the author attains effects which are really charming. It is a relief to turn to a work which can be inherently interesting without being wildly improbable."—Academy.

RED RYVINGTON. By William

WESTALL, Author of "Larry Lobengrin," &c. 3 vols.
"Red Rivington" is an exceedingly clever novel. —World.
"One of the most readable novels of the year. The conversations are both interesting and amusing, preserving, as they do, the easy and humorous manners and modes of expression of the self-made men who hold them."—Daily News.

THE BRANDRETHS. By the Right Hon. A. J. B. BERESFORD-HOPE, M.P., Author of "Strictly Tied Up," &c. 3 vols.

"Mr. Hope writes of political life and the vicissitudes of parties with the knowledge and experience of a veteran politician. Not a few of the casual pictures of society are exceedingly faithful and lively. The novel is one which will repay careful reading."—Times.

A STORY of CARNIVAL. By MARY A. M. HOPFUS, Author of "Five-Chimney Farm," &c. 3 vols. [Just ready.]

SANDRACOLTUS:

A DRAMA IN FIVE ACTS.

By W. THEODORE SMITH.

Chandra Gupta, named by the Greeks "Sandracoltus," reigned in India in the year 340 B.C., and Seleucus, successor of Alexander, invaded the country. Damachus wrote an account of his embassy at that time, and peace was concluded by a treaty by virtue of which Seleucus gave his daughter in marriage to Chandra Gupta.
The other characters in this work are entirely portrayed from real life, who suffered under the law of caste, which has been rampant in India from time immemorial; the personages and their language are the result of travel and study.

GEOLOGY OF THE COUNTIES OF ENGLAND AND OF NORTH AND SOUTH WALES.

BY
W. JEROME HARRISON, F.G.S.,

Science Demonstrator for the Birmingham School Board;
late Curator Leicester Town Museum.

"Mr. W. J. Harrison has struck out the excellent idea of drawing up a handbook to the counties of England and Wales, having for its basis the geological features and structure of every district: making his book, in fact, a geographical geology; so that, without special education in the science, anyone with this manual in hand may readily acquaint himself with the nature of the rocks and other physical characteristics of any part of the country in which he may dwell, through which he may travel, or concerning which he may need information. A new interest will thus be added to the summer holiday or the rural excursion, and, with a degree of mental effort too slight to be otherwise than agreeable, a process of education may be continually going forward."—Saturday Review.

"We have tested it in many ways, and find that in almost every case the latest information, even when published in journals of very restricted circulation, has been discovered and made use of. There are numerous excellent woodcuts. . . . We can heartily recommend this book as a convenient and reliable work of reference."—Nature.

"We sincerely compliment Mr. Harrison on producing a good and much required work of geology which will save a student not only much personal research and time, but put him on the track of almost everything geological which England and Wales can offer to him. Not only have we here a clear outline of the geology of every English and Welsh county, illustrated by sections, characteristic fossils, &c., but a list of the papers and other works published thereon, as well as a reference to the museums where the chief collections of each county may be seen and studied. . . . This ought to be, and deserves to be, a very successful book."—Science Gossip.

"It deals with each county in alphabetical order, and describes in a manner at once concise and lucid the principal characteristics of its geological formations, their fossils, and economic products. . . . The value of the volume is much enhanced by numerous illustrations."—Leicester Chronicle and Mercury.

"We have here a most laborious and, we do not hesitate to say, a most useful compilation. . . . The remarks on the characteristic scenery of the counties, as resulting from their geological features, are interesting and correct. . . . We must express our conviction that the book supplies and fills up an important gap in the literature of geological science, and will be found a most valuable book of reference."—Journal of Science.

"We have been greatly pleased with Mr. Harrison's book on the Geology of the Counties."—Natural History Journal.

"What will be the feelings of those who expect that everything should be original when Mr. Harrison acknowledges having consulted over four thousand papers, &c.? In this, clearly, he has taken the proper course, and all geologists will allow that he has gathered his harvest of knowledge discreetly."—Midland Naturalist.

"It is a work which no student of geology should be without."—Natural History Notes.

HISTORY OF ROME AND OF THE ROMAN PEOPLE.

FROM ITS ORIGIN TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE CHRISTIAN EMPIRE.

By VICTOR DURUY,

Member of the Institute, Ex-Minister of Public Instruction, &c.

(Translated by W. J. CLARKE, Esq., M.A.)

Edited by the Rev. J. P. MAHAFFY,

Professor of Ancient History, Trinity College, Dublin.

Containing about 3,000 Engravings, 100 Maps and Plans by ERHARDT and others, and numerous Chromo-lithographs by GOUPIL, PERCY, and others.

The TIMES, in noticing the French Edition of this work, says:—

"The merits of M. Duruy's work are so widely acknowledged that it is not necessary to enter upon any lengthened statement showing the great range of historical research displayed in it, or upon any fresh eulogy of the author's power of exposition and illustration. It deals confidently and plausibly with the elucidation of all that is obscure in the great borderland between the prehistoric and the historic, and with many it may shake the dictum of the late Sir G. Cornewall Lewis in his 'Enquiry into the Credibility of the Early Roman History'—that 'all the elaborate researches of modern scholars respecting the primitive history of the Pelasgians, the Sicels, the Tyrrhenians, the Etruscans, the Aborigines, the Latins, and other national races must be considered as not less unreal than the speculations concerning judicial astrology or the discovery of the philosopher's stone and the elixir of life. Not only the results of the uncritical Italian historians, such as Miceli, but those arrived at by the most learned and sagacious of the German enquirers, as Niebuhr and Otfried Müller, must be rejected when they relate to this unknown and undiscoverable period.'"

The EDUCATIONAL REVIEW says:—

"The Roman History for which we are indebted to M. Duruy has already established its reputation as a specimen of sound scholarship and of excellent writing, and the author has hardly brought it to a completion in the ordinary octavo form before he, anxious to increase its popularity and to add to its attraction, re-edits it as an ouvrage de luxe with all the further advantages which the draughtsman's and the engraver's cunning is able to supplement. History is the proper field for pictorial illustration, and the artist need not draw upon his fancy to produce an interesting and useful result. Plans, views of celebrated localities, engravings of medals, coins, and statues, sketches of buildings, maps, and diagrams here find their natural place, and, thanks to the progress made during the last half-century by wood-engraving and chromo-lithography, we are able to procure for our children and our pupils illustrated text-books which were not so much as dreamt of in our own school-boy days. We heartily recommend the first volume as a most powerful contribution to historical literature."

The SCHOOL BOARD CHRONICLE says:—

"The illustrated edition of M. Duruy's 'Histoire des Romains' has now reached its fourth volume, bringing us to the accession of the Emperor Hadrian. Let us, in the first place, give a meed of due praise to the pictorial part of the work. It has been throughout, so far as beauty of execution is concerned, admirable; but a few anachronisms might easily be detected in the illustrations to the first three volumes, whereas the present one, examined in this respect, is almost blameless. We must also notice that the two centuries which immediately preceded the Christian era are particularly rich in archaeological monuments of every kind; the only difficulty is, which to select, which to exclude, and the danger of allowing the artist to monopolise too much room was now the one to be guarded against. . . . The foot-notes, which are extremely copious, prove abundantly that the author has consulted all the works, both ancient and modern, bearing upon the subject with which he has to do: Gratz, Merivale, Dennis, and De Clairac are as familiar to him as Suetonius, Livy, and Dio Cassius, and the impartiality of his appreciation is not the least merit of a work destined, we believe, to the most legitimate success."

BELL'S WEEKLY MESSENGER says:—

"It has been a vapid fashion in this country for a long time past to rave about the German author Mommsen's elucidation of the 'History of Rome,' and this has, in a measure, caused M. Duruy's far superior and much more reliable investigation to be not only overlooked, but, to a far too large an extent, disregarded. . . . We can by no means in our power sufficiently indicate the value and importance of M. Duruy's exhaustive work. Were it only on account of its superb illustrations—no less than 2,500 in number, of admirable delineation and engraving—it could but be pronounced as a chef-d'œuvre, whilst the appearance of the binding is of unqualified beauty. These, however, are after all merely extraneous features. The chief value of the work resides in the manner of its unfolding the accurate elucidation of the annals of the once grandest nation of the world, the particulars of whose valour, persistency, and conduct, both in peace and war, can never fail to have both a pervading and a perpetual influence upon every people of the entire globe so long as time shall exist. . . . We have had many Roman Histories printed and published in our own country deserving large commendation—that by the late Dr. Arnold, 'the pre-eminent prince of schoolmasters,' more especially—but 'the fires' of each and all of these 'pale' and are 'ineffectual' before the research, the explanation and the individuality of M. Duruy's incomparable work. No one with any pretence to learning or judgment can refuse for a moment to acknowledge that, not only has this History never been equalled, but that it is never likely to be surpassed. M. Duruy has, in a word, discovered all that ever can be discovered and written all that can be written concerning those great events which changed the face of the world from the times of Rome's foundation to the incursion of the Huns, the Vandals, and other barbarian hordes which overran the whole Italian territory and changed the face of Europe. . . . He has augmented and embellished it to a larger extent than could have been conceived to be possible. . . . Not one of our public schoolmasters should lose sight of the re-appearance of this great work in its present form, since it will enable them to place in the hands of their most promising pupils—as the most fitting of 'prices'—the very best means for their obtaining a thoroughly perfect acquaintance with the most important fact of Roman history."

Specimens will shortly be ready, to be obtained of any Bookseller, or from

KELLY & CO., 51, GREAT QUEEN STREET, LINCOLN'S INN FIELDS, LONDON, W.C.
